Fall 2014 Weekend Classes

Course Content:
An orientation and review session will be held on the Friday evening, September 12, 2014, followed on Saturday, September 13 with a course entrance exam. The test will be administered with both written and practical testing methods. Due to the advanced nature of this dental assisting course, an adequate knowledge of anatomy, terminology and instrumentation is essential for successful participation. It is mandatory to attend the first weekend in order to continue with the course. Failure to take or pass either entrance exam will result in a withdraw, and a $445.00 fee will be assessed to cover non-recoupable costs. The remaining $895.00 will be credited towards a future Expanded Functions (EFDA) program. No refunds will be issued.

In the remaining instructional sessions students will receive training in terminology, anatomy, rubber dam technique, resin and amalgam restorative techniques for Class I, II, III, IV and V restorations, as well as the necessary matrix technique for each restoration.

All sessions will be held at the dental school in laboratory room S315. Attendance is mandatory at all sessions.

Employers: It is necessary and important that students have opportunities for supervised clinical application of their skills in the office of their employing dentist between instructional sessions.

Instructors:

Wheeler’s Dental Anatomy
Phillip’s Elements of Dental Materials for Dental Hygienists and Assistants
